

Save Our Sons

Program Description

Beginning this summer, The Urban League of Greater Dallas and North Central Texas, in partnership with Community Voices: Health Care for the Underserved at Morehouse School of Medicine and Pfizer are hosting a series of free educational health workshops. Targeting African American men ages 18 and up, these workshops will focus on ways to incorporate healthy eating and exercise in an effort to reduce diabetes rates and maintain a healthy lifestyle.

Workshop session topics may include:

- The Power to Prevent Program: This is an educational program designed to encourage African Americans to become more physically active and eat healthier foods
- Small Steps Lead to Big Rewards: This session will identify simple ways to prevent diabetes
- Physical Activity- Get Moving Today: This session will describe ways to add physical activity to one's daily routine
- Strategies for Healthy Eating: This session will cover how to incorporate and maintain healthy eating
- Partner with Your Health Care Provider: This session will include what to discuss with a physician
- Celebrate Big Rewards- This session will describe how small steps result in big rewards, such as weight loss.

Working in partnership with local community health workers, workshop participants will be provided incentives and learn innovative strategies for improving their overall health and well-being.

About National Urban League

Established in 1910, The Urban League is the nation's oldest and largest community-based movement devoted to empowering African Americans to enter the economic and social mainstream. Today, the National Urban League, headquartered in New York City, spearheads the non-partisan efforts of its local affiliates. There are over 100 local affiliates of the National Urban League located in 35 states and the District of Columbia providing direct services to more than 2 million people nationwide through programs, advocacy and research. The mission of the Urban League movement is to enable African Americans to secure economic self-reliance, parity, power and civil rights.

About Community Voices

Community Voices' mission is to increase enrollment of eligible people into public programs and to improve health care access and quality for the underserved by providing models for change and improvement. Program outcomes must include a greater focus on primary care and prevention, preservation and strengthening of the community health care safety net, implementation of a stronger health care delivery system, and development of best practices for communities to adapt to unique circumstances. Community Voices believes it is not enough to implement programs without establishing a framework for how they operate an evaluation process, and methods to document those findings so that adjustments can be made.

About Pfizer

Founded in 1849, Pfizer is the world's largest research-based pharmaceutical company. Pfizer is taking new approaches to advancing better health as it discovers, develops, manufactures and delivers quality, safe and effective prescription medicines to treat and help prevent disease for both people and animals. Pfizer also partners with healthcare providers, governments and local communities around the world to expand access to medicines and to provide better quality health care and health system support. At Pfizer, approximately 85,000 colleagues in more than 90 countries work every day to help people stay happier and healthier longer and to reduce the human and economic burden of disease worldwide.
